

Home >> News >> Politics and Government >> 2019 Legislature

Nevada sees many new laws, but how will they affect you?

Speaker Jason Frierson, D-Las Vegas, presides over the Assembly the Legislative Building in Carson City on the first day of the 80th session of the Nevada Legislature Monday, Feb. 4, 2019. (KM Cannon/Las Vegas Review-Journal)

By Bill Dentzer and Colton Lochhead Las Vegas Review-Journal
June 7, 2019 • 8:37 pm

Don't miss the big stories. Like us on Facebook. Follow 222K

Updated June 10, 2019 - 9:40 am
Listen to this article now -35:47

Presented by NAOMI INJURY LAW

CARSON CITY — The Nevada Legislature passed nearly 700 bills and resolutions during the 2019 session, from raising the minimum wage and overhauling dozens of criminal justice laws to revamping the state's five-decade old education funding formula, and more.

Gov. Steve Sisolak signed 638 bills and vetoed just three.

Here's a look at 131 of those bills, and how they could impact you. (Bills without effective dates may take effect upon signing or on Oct. 1 by statute.)

Business and commerce

Minimum age to work for gaming businesses: No longer does a person have to be 21 to work for a gaming equipment company; 18-year-olds (or even 16-year-olds who are emancipated by a court), can work as licensed gaming employees for gaming manufacturers and distributors. (Assembly Bill 221 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

For railroad employees: Freight trains passing through the state must have two workers on board at all times from now on. (Assembly Bill 337, signed by governor.)

Social work fees: Social workers will be paying more to the Board of Examiners for Social Workers for application and licensing fees. (Senate Bill 502 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

RJ POLITICS
Team coverage from Las Vegas, Carson City and DC
Sign up for our free RJ Politics newsletter.
EMAIL: _____ SIGN UP

By signing up you agree to our Privacy Policy and Terms of Service. Unsubscribe at any time.

Fewer food deserts: The state will begin offering tax credits for businesses willing to invest in "fresh food retailers" located in food deserts — areas in cities that do not have grocery stores within one mile, or in rural areas within 10 miles. (Assembly Bill 326 effective July 1; not yet signed.)

Higher minimum wages: The state's minimum wage will gradually rise to $12 per hour over the next five years. Current minimum wage sits at $8.25 per hour for employers that don't offer health insurance and $7.25 for those that do. That will increase by 75 cents starting July 1, 2020, and will go up each year until it hits $12 for those not offered health insurance, and $11 for those who are, by 2024. (Assembly Bill 456 effective July 1, 2020; signed by governor.)

Not only that, but lawmakers began the process of amending the state constitution to set a flat minimum wage for everyone (regardless of health insurance) at $12 per hour, and to give the Legislature the power to raise the wage in the future. Assembly Joint Resolution 10 must be approved again in 2021 and then go to the voters before it takes effect.

Insurance for minimum wage workers: Employers will be required to provide a minimum level of health insurance to workers in order to pay them the lower $7.25 per hour minimum wage. (Senate Bill 192 effective Jan. 1; signed by governor.)

For payday lenders: A new database of payday loans will go in effect in 2020 that will allow the state to better track how those loans are given out and enforce the laws around short-term loans, such limiting monthly payments to no more than 25 percent of the customer's expected gross monthly income. (Senate Bill 201 effective July 1, 2020; signed by governor.)

Campaigns, elections & voting

Campaign reform: Candidates won't be allowed to pay themselves a salary from their campaign accounts going forward, and the new law makes clear that candidates can't use any unspent campaign funds for personal use. Those who get caught violating the laws will face $10,000 penalties, up from the old $5,000. Senate Majority Leader Kelvin Atkinson resigned from the Legislature in March when it was revealed he'd used campaign funds for personal expenses. (Senate Bill 557 effective Jan. 1; signed by governor.)

Polling on Native American land: If county or city clerks open a polling place within Native American reservation boundaries during an election, they will be required to open that same polling location in future elections unless the tribe requests otherwise. (Assembly Bill 137 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

For voters: You'll be able to vote on the same day you register going forward, and have a longer time to register to vote online. (Assembly Bill 345, not yet signed.)

For the thousands of Nevadans who can't vote due to felonies: On July 1, some 77,000 people with a felony conviction that bars them from voting will instantly have their right to vote restored. And going forward, anyone released from prison will be allowed to vote as well. (Assembly Bill 431 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

For those who want to recall their elected officials: Things just got a little harder for people looking to kick their elected official out of office. A new law would require county clerks to verify every single signature on a recall petition, as opposed to using a 5 percent sample. It would also require recall organizers to pay for counting the signatures. (Senate Bill 450, signed by governor.)

Civil rights

Marriage, now only for 17-year-olds and older: Nevada did not have an absolute law on the minimum age to marry before this session. But going forward, that bar is set at 17 years of age minimum, and those 17-year-olds would need approval of at least one parent or guardian and for a judge to sign off, under a bill by Assemblywoman Shannon Bilbray-Axelrod, D-Las Vegas. (Assembly Bill 139 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

For people who solemnize marriages: Counties will be allowed to require training for marriage officiants going forward (Assembly Bill 482 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Prohibition of discrimination in child welfare and adoption cases: It will be illegal to discriminate against those who are deaf, blind, physically disabled, or who possess a medical marijuana card, who want to adopt or argue for child custody or visitation rights. (Assembly Bill 140 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

For victims of sexual assault: The Sexual Assault Survivors' Bill of Rights gives victims the right to consult with a sexual assault counselor whenever they are subject to a forensic medical exam or interviewed by law enforcement, prosecutors or defense attorneys. (Assembly Bill 176 effective in part on July 1, in full on Jan. 1, 2021; signed by governor.)

For those scared of mind control: Employers will not be allowed to compel microchip implants for their workers. But if you want one yourself, that's still totally fine. (Assembly Bill 226, signed by governor.)

For immigrants seeking occupational licensing: Licensing boards won't be able to deny someone from getting an occupational license based solely on their immigration or citizenship status. (Assembly Bill 275 effective July 1; not yet signed)

For cops getting DNA evidence: Search warrants seeking DNA evidence will now have a six-month shelf life, as opposed to the 10-day requirement for most search warrants. (Assembly Bill 16 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

For inmates getting released from prison: The state Department of Corrections must give inmates they release photo identification that includes their full name and age. (Assembly Bill 10 effective May 23; signed by governor.)

More help for indigent defense: The new Department of Indigent Defense Services and Board of Indigent Defense will be tasked with ensuring proper legal representation comes to those most in need. (Assembly Bill 81 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

No more statute of limitations for sexual assault with DNA evidence: Nevada used to have a 20-year statute of limitations for sexual assaults, but no more if the suspect can be identified using DNA evidence. (Assembly Bill 142 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Clear your marijuana possession convictions: If you were convicted of possession of less than an ounce of marijuana in the past — the amount that is now legal to have — you can ask a court to seal that conviction so that it won't show up on your record anymore. (Assembly Bill 192 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Seal eviction cases: Evictions cases can be sealed if they have dismissed or denied. (Assembly Bill 266 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Criminal justice overhaul: The massive criminal justice reform bill championed by Assemblyman Steve Yeager, D-Las Vegas, including — among many other things — allowing some geriatric prisoners to be released to house arrest, increasing the weights to trigger felony drug possession and trafficking charges and allowing earlier parole on low-level offenses. (Assembly Bill 236 effective in part July 1, 2019, in full July 1, 2020; not yet signed.)

Wrongful convictions: Those exonerated or deemed to have been wrongfully convicted can sue the state for damages. Anyone imprisoned for 20 years or longer can receive up to $100,000 per year of incarceration. (Assembly Bill 267, signed by governor.)

Getting out of gang databases: If you are notified by police that you are in a gang database, you will now have the ability to request to be removed. (Assembly Bill 307 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Community service instead of court fines: A judge can now offer to let someone who can't afford to pay their fines to instead perform community service. (Assembly Bill 416, signed by governor.)

No jail time for traffic tickets: Under the new law, the Legislature sets forth that people who are arrested for minor traffic violations can be released on their own recognizance unless they're deemed a danger to the community. (Assembly Bill 434, effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

Equal pay protection based on gender: Adds protections in state law ensuring equal pay for equal work based on gender and sets forth a tiered-system of civil penalties for certain employers that increases per offense. (Senate Bill 166 effective Jan. 1; signed by governor.)

Sex trafficking victims can wipe their records clean: New laws expand the list of crimes for which sex trafficking victims can ask the court to seal or vacate the convictions. (Senate Bill 173 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

No sex with people in custody: Makes it clear in the law that cops are not allowed to have any kind of sexual contact with a person they have arrested or detained. (Senate Bill 383 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

For immigrants arrested by police: Before a person arrested by police can be questioned about their immigration status, officers must disclose the purpose of such questions. (Assembly Bill 376 effective Jan. 1; signed by governor.)

Courts

Small claims courts: All small claims must be tried in the township where the defendant lives. (Assembly Bill 9, signed by governor.)

More judges for shorter wait times: Clark County will be getting six new family court judges starting Jan. 4, 2021. (Assembly Bill 43, signed by governor.)

No gag orders in settlements involving sex offenses or discrimination: The agreements could not prohibit a person from disclosing information relating to sex offense crimes or gender-based discrimination by an employer or landlord. (Assembly Bill 248 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

For those with homestead declarations on their properties: Lawmakers increased the equity protected in homestead properties in Nevada from $550,000 to $605,000. (Assembly Bill 481 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

Domestic violence

More ways to serve protective orders: Police will have more ways to serve temporary protective orders, instead of current law which limits them to being served in person only. Extended protection orders will last longer, and people who violate those orders repeatedly will face stiffer punishments. (Assembly Bill 19 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Longer protection orders: The effective dates of initial temporary protective orders will be extended from from 30 to 45 days in cases of domestic violence, stalking, aggravated stalking, or harassment. (Assembly Bill 410 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

For victims: It will be easier for domestic violence victims to get protection orders against their abusers, as the courts will only be able to base their decision on whether or not the person was a victim. The new laws also increase the penalties for repeated violations of those orders. (Senate Bill 218, signed by governor.)

More crimes count as domestic violence: New laws include more crimes that can be counted as domestic violence, including domestic battery of a pregnant woman, which is punishable at first as a gross misdemeanor and then as a category B felony. Repeat offenders will also face increased penalties. (Assembly Bill 60 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

More privacy for domestic violence victims: Government agencies and public utilities will be required to accept fictitious address instead of real ones from people who are victims of domestic violence. The state already allows the Department of Health and Human Services to issue fictitious addresses as a protective measure to victims of domestic violence, sex trafficking, stalking and sexual assault. (Assembly Bill 41 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Education

More money for schools: Per-pupil funding will rise by nearly $300 next school year in Clark County, thanks to the increased funding in for the state's K-12 budget, going from $5,779 in 2018 to $6,067 next school year under the new budget. (Assembly Bill 555, signed by governor.)

For students dealing with trauma: Police will be required to notify the renamed Handle with Care Program if a child has been exposed to domestic violence, the death of a family member, the arrest of a parent and child abuse. Notification that the child has been part of or witnessed a traumatic event will then be sent to schools, which can provide "wraparound" if needed. (Senate Bill 80 effective Jan. 1; signed by governor.)

For homeless students: Schools will be required to identify students who are homeless, unaccompanied or in foster care, and will need to review and adjust those students' academic plans to maximize course credit hours. The new laws also allow those students them earn credit regardless of attendance. (Senate Bill 147 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

For young students struggling with reading: An additional $63 million will be coming to the state's Read-by-3 program in the next two years. But a key provision of the original law was removed, and now parents will have to sign off on their child being retained if they do not meet the standards set by the state. The bill was championed by Assemblyman Tyrone Thompson, D-North Las Vegas, who died during the 2019 session. (Assembly Bill 289 effective July 1; not yet signed.)

For military kids in sports: Students whose parents are in the military and who change schools will be immediately eligible to play in any sanctioned sport or other activity at their new school. (Assembly Bill 342 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Fewer hoops for school volunteers: After a 2017 change added background checks and fingerprinting requirements for most school volunteers, a tweak to those laws should help more parents volunteer in the classroom without those burdens. (Senate Bill 185, signed by governor.)

For students at Zoom and Victory schools: Zoom and Victory school designations, which provide additional funding to low-performing schools in low-income or areas with high numbers of English-language learners, were continued for another two years. Those programs were set to expire on July 1. (Senate Bill 467, signed by governor.)

Revamped funding formula — eventually: Lawmakers approved an overhaul to the state's 52-year-old K-12 funding formula. The formula will allocate more funding to follow students who are in special education or gifted and talented programs, those at or near the poverty line, or those learning English. That formula won't be fully implemented until 2021, however. (Senate Bill 543 effective July 1; not yet signed.)

MOST READ: POLITICS & GOVT

- 1 It should be offensive to every Nevadan: Bill looks to silence controversial siren
- 2 Ex-motel gets new mission: Helping the homeless
- 3 Going after these racers': Metro hails success of RAID team
- 4 More than $250M in federal funds coming to help keep water in Lake Mead
- 5 Lombardo signs state worker bonus bill

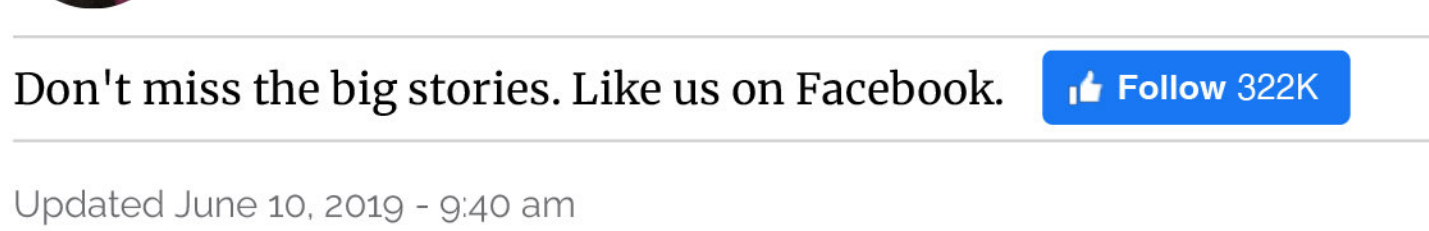

Home >> News >> Politics and Government >> 2019 Legislature

Nevada sees many new laws, but how will they affect you?

Speaker Jason Frierson, D-Las Vegas, presides over the Assembly the Legislative Building in Carson City on the first day of the 80th session of the Nevada Legislature Monday, Feb. 4, 2019. (KM Cannon/Las Vegas Review-Journal)

By Bill Dentzer and Colton Lochhead Las Vegas Review-Journal
June 7, 2019 • 8:37 pm

Don't miss the big stories. Like us on Facebook. Follow 222K

Updated June 10, 2019 - 9:40 am
Listen to this article now -35:47

Presented by NAOMI INJURY LAW

CARSON CITY — The Nevada Legislature passed nearly 700 bills and resolutions during the 2019 session, from raising the minimum wage and overhauling dozens of criminal justice laws to revamping the state's five-decade old education funding formula, and more.

Gov. Steve Sisolak signed 638 bills and vetoed just three.

Here's a look at 131 of those bills, and how they could impact you. (Bills without effective dates may take effect upon signing or on Oct. 1 by statute.)

Business and commerce

Minimum age to work for gaming businesses: No longer does a person have to be 21 to work for a gaming equipment company; 18-year-olds (or even 16-year-olds who are emancipated by a court), can work as licensed gaming employees for gaming manufacturers and distributors. (Assembly Bill 221 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

For railroad employees: Freight trains passing through the state must have two workers on board at all times from now on. (Assembly Bill 337, signed by governor.)

Social work fees: Social workers will be paying more to the Board of Examiners for Social Workers for application and licensing fees. (Senate Bill 502 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

RJ POLITICS
Team coverage from Las Vegas, Carson City and DC
Sign up for our free RJ Politics newsletter.
EMAIL SIGN UP

By signing up you agree to our Privacy Policy and Terms of Service. Unsubscribe at any time.

Fewer food deserts: The state will begin offering tax credits for businesses willing to invest in "fresh food retailers" located in food deserts — areas in cities that do not have grocery stores within one mile, or in rural areas within 10 miles. (Assembly Bill 326 effective July 1; not yet signed.)

Higher minimum wages: The state's minimum wage will gradually rise to $12 per hour over the next five years. Current minimum wage sits at $8.25 per hour for employers that don't offer health insurance and $7.25 for those that do. That will increase by 75 cents starting July 1, 2020, and will go up each year until it hits $12 for those not offered health insurance, and $11 for those who are, by 2024. (Assembly Bill 456 effective July 1, 2020; signed by governor.)

Not only that, but lawmakers began the process of amending the state constitution to set a flat minimum wage for everyone (regardless of health insurance) at $12 per hour, and to give the Legislature the power to raise the wage in the future. Assembly Joint Resolution 10 must be approved again in 2021 and then go to the voters before it takes effect.

Insurance for minimum wage workers: Employers will be required to provide a minimum level of health insurance to workers in order to pay them the lower $7.25 per hour minimum wage. (Senate Bill 192 effective Jan. 1; signed by governor.)

For payday lenders: A new database of payday loans will go in effect in 2020 that will allow the state to better track how those loans are given out and enforce the laws around short-term loans, such limiting monthly payments to no more than 25 percent of the customer's expected gross monthly income. (Senate Bill 201 effective July 1, 2020; signed by governor.)

Campaigns, elections & voting

Campaign reform: Candidates won't be allowed to pay themselves a salary from their campaign accounts going forward, and the new law makes clear that candidates can't use any unspent campaign funds for personal use. Those who get caught violating the laws will face $10,000 penalties, up from the old $5,000. Senate Majority Leader Kelvin Atkinson resigned from the Legislature in March when it was revealed he'd used campaign funds for personal expenses. (Senate Bill 557 effective Jan. 1; signed by governor.)

Polling on Native American land: If county or city clerks open a polling place within Native American reservation boundaries during an election, they will be required to open that same polling location in future elections unless the tribe requests otherwise. (Assembly Bill 137 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

For voters: You'll be able to vote on the same day you register going forward, and have a longer time to register to vote online. (Assembly Bill 345, not yet signed.)

For the thousands of Nevadans who can't vote due to felonies: On July 1, some 77,000 people with a felony conviction that bars them from voting will instantly have their right to vote restored. And going forward, anyone released from prison will be allowed to vote as well. (Assembly Bill 431 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

For those who want to recall their elected officials: Things just got a little harder for people looking to kick their elected official out of office. A new law would require county clerks to verify every single signature on a recall petition, as opposed to using a 5 percent sample. It would also require recall organizers to pay for counting the signatures. (Senate Bill 450, signed by governor.)

Civil rights

Marriage, now only for 17-year-olds and older: Nevada did not have an absolute law on the minimum age to marry before this session. But going forward, that bar is set at 17 years of age minimum, and those 17-year-olds would need approval of at least one parent or guardian and for a judge to sign off, under a bill by Assemblywoman Shannon Bilbray-Axelrod, D-Las Vegas. (Assembly Bill 139 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

For people who solemnize marriages: Counties will be allowed to require training for marriage officiants going forward (Assembly Bill 482 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Prohibition of discrimination in child welfare and adoption cases: It will be illegal to discriminate against those who are deaf, blind, physically disabled, or who possess a medical marijuana card, who want to adopt or argue for child custody or visitation rights. (Assembly Bill 140 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

For victims of sexual assault: The Sexual Assault Survivors' Bill of Rights gives victims the right to consult with a sexual assault counselor whenever they are subject to a forensic medical exam or interviewed by law enforcement, prosecutors or defense attorneys. (Assembly Bill 176 effective in part on July 1, in full on Jan. 1, 2021; signed by governor.)

For those scared of mind control: Employers will not be allowed to compel microchip implants for their workers. But if you want one yourself, that's still totally fine. (Assembly Bill 226, signed by governor.)

For immigrants seeking occupational licensing: Licensing boards won't be able to deny someone from getting an occupational license based solely on their immigration or citizenship status. (Assembly Bill 275 effective July 1; not yet signed)

For cops getting DNA evidence: Search warrants seeking DNA evidence will now have a six-month shelf life, as opposed to the 10-day requirement for most search warrants. (Assembly Bill 16 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

For inmates getting released from prison: The state Department of Corrections must give inmates they release photo identification that includes their full name and age. (Assembly Bill 10 effective May 23; signed by governor.)

More help for indigent defense: The new Department of Indigent Defense Services and Board of Indigent Defense will be tasked with ensuring proper legal representation comes to those most in need. (Assembly Bill 81 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

No more statute of limitations for sexual assault with DNA evidence: Nevada used to have a 20-year statute of limitations for sexual assaults, but no more if the suspect can be identified using DNA evidence. (Assembly Bill 142 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Clear your marijuana possession convictions: If you were convicted of possession of less than an ounce of marijuana in the past — the amount that is now legal to have — you can ask a court to seal that conviction so that it won't show up on your record anymore. (Assembly Bill 192 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Seal eviction cases: Evictions cases can be sealed if they have dismissed or denied. (Assembly Bill 266 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Criminal justice overhaul: The massive criminal justice reform bill championed by Assemblyman Steve Yeager, D-Las Vegas, including — among many other things — allowing some geriatric prisoners to be released to house arrest, increasing the weights to trigger felony drug possession and trafficking charges and allowing earlier parole on low-level offenses. (Assembly Bill 236 effective in part July 1, 2019, in full July 1, 2020; not yet signed.)

Wrongful convictions: Those exonerated or deemed to have been wrongfully convicted can sue the state for damages. Anyone imprisoned for 20 years or longer can receive up to $100,000 per year of incarceration. (Assembly Bill 267, signed by governor.)

Getting out of gang databases: If you are notified by police that you are in a gang database, you will now have the ability to request to be removed. (Assembly Bill 307 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Community service instead of court fines: A judge can now offer to let someone who can't afford to pay their fines to instead perform community service. (Assembly Bill 416, signed by governor.)

No jail time for traffic tickets: Under the new law, the Legislature sets forth that people who are arrested for minor traffic violations can be released on their own recognizance unless they're deemed a danger to the community. (Assembly Bill 434, effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

Equal pay protection based on gender: Adds protections in state law ensuring equal pay for equal work based on gender and sets forth a tiered-system of civil penalties for certain employers that increases per offense. (Senate Bill 166 effective Jan. 1; signed by governor.)

Sex trafficking victims can wipe their records clean: New laws expand the list of crimes for which sex trafficking victims can ask the court to seal or vacate the convictions. (Senate Bill 173 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

No sex with people in custody: Makes it clear in the law that cops are not allowed to have any kind of sexual contact with a person they have arrested or detained. (Senate Bill 383 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

For immigrants arrested by police: Before a person arrested by police can be questioned about their immigration status, officers must disclose the purpose of such questions. (Assembly Bill 376 effective Jan. 1; signed by governor.)

Courts

Small claims courts: All small claims must be tried in the township where the defendant lives. (Assembly Bill 9, signed by governor.)

More judges for shorter wait times: Clark County will be getting six new family court judges starting Jan. 4, 2021. (Assembly Bill 43, signed by governor.)

No gag orders in settlements involving sex offenses or discrimination: The agreements could not prohibit a person from disclosing information relating to sex offense crimes or gender-based discrimination by an employer or landlord. (Assembly Bill 248 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

For those with homestead declarations on their properties: Lawmakers increased the equity protected in homestead properties in Nevada from $550,000 to $605,000. (Assembly Bill 481 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

Domestic violence

More ways to serve protective orders: Police will have more ways to serve temporary protective orders, instead of current law which limits them to being served in person only. Extended protection orders will last longer, and people who violate those orders repeatedly will face stiffer punishments. (Assembly Bill 19 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Longer protection orders: The effective dates of initial temporary protective orders will be extended from from 30 to 45 days in cases of domestic violence, stalking, aggravated stalking, or harassment. (Assembly Bill 410 effective Oct. 1; signed by governor.)

For victims: It will be easier for domestic violence victims to get protection orders against their abusers, as the courts will only be able to base their decision on whether or not the person was a victim. The new laws also increase the penalties for repeated violations of those orders. (Senate Bill 218, signed by governor.)

More crimes count as domestic violence: New laws include more crimes that can be counted as domestic violence, including domestic battery of a pregnant woman, which is punishable at first as a gross misdemeanor and then as a category B felony. Repeat offenders will also face increased penalties. (Assembly Bill 60 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

More privacy for domestic violence victims: Government agencies and public utilities will be required to accept fictitious address instead of real ones from people who are victims of domestic violence. The state already allows the Department of Health and Human Services to issue fictitious addresses as a protective measure to victims of domestic violence, sex trafficking, stalking and sexual assault. (Assembly Bill 41 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Education

More money for schools: Per-pupil funding will rise by nearly $300 next school year in Clark County, thanks to the increased funding in for the state's K-12 budget, going from $5,779 in 2018 to $6,067 next school year under the new budget. (Assembly Bill 555, signed by governor.)

For students dealing with trauma: Police will be required to notify the renamed Handle with Care Program if a child has been exposed to domestic violence, the death of a family member, the arrest of a parent and child abuse. Notification that the child has been part of or witnessed a traumatic event will then be sent to schools, which can provide "wraparound" if needed. (Senate Bill 80 effective Jan. 1; signed by governor.)

For homeless students: Schools will be required to identify students who are homeless, unaccompanied or in foster care, and will need to review and adjust those students' academic plans to maximize course credit hours. The new laws also allow those students them earn credit regardless of attendance. (Senate Bill 147 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

For young students struggling with reading: An additional $63 million will be coming to the state's Read-by-3 program in the next two years. But a key provision of the original law was removed, and now parents will have to sign off on their child being retained if they do not meet the standards set by the state. The bill was championed by Assemblyman Tyrone Thompson, D-North Las Vegas, who died during the 2019 session. (Assembly Bill 289 effective July 1; not yet signed.)

For military kids in sports: Students whose parents are in the military and who change schools will be immediately eligible to play in any sanctioned sport or other activity at their new school. (Assembly Bill 342 effective July 1; signed by governor.)

Fewer hoops for school volunteers: After a 2017 change added background checks and fingerprinting requirements for most school volunteers, a tweak to those laws should help more parents volunteer in the classroom without those burdens. (Senate Bill 185, signed by governor.)

For students at Zoom and Victory schools: Zoom and Victory school designations, which provide additional funding to low-performing schools in low-income or areas with high numbers of English-language learners, were continued for another two years. Those programs were set to expire on July 1. (Senate Bill 467, signed by governor.)

Revamped funding formula — eventually: Lawmakers approved an overhaul to the state's 52-year-old K-12 funding formula. The formula will allocate more funding to follow students who are in special education or gifted and talented programs, those at or near the poverty line, or those learning English. That formula won't be fully implemented until 2021, however. (Senate Bill 543 effective July 1; not yet signed.)

MOST READ: POLITICS & GOVT

- 1 It should be offensive to every Nevadan: Bill looks to silence controversial siren
- 2 Ex-motel gets new mission: Helping the homeless
- 3 Going after these racers': Metro hails success of RAID team
- 4 More than $250M in federal funds coming to help keep water in Lake Mead
- 5 Lombardo signs state worker bonus bill

